26 years old Abdullah’s passion while choosing his career in cooking came natural and with confidence followed by Matriculation in 2009. He invested in seeking specialist cooking trainings from one of the top local Japanese restaurants in Pakistan. From professional commercial chefs to specialised training institutes, Abdullah devoted four years of his dedication in learning to be the “Japanese Shefu”.

While sharing his passion for Japanese cuisine, let alone cooking the routine food, Abdullah describes, “Japanese cuisine is distinct in many ways, the process of cooking, the tools and techniques involved in the cooking process and the set of traditional Japanese cutlery utilized to enjoy ingesting the cuisine carries a unique distinction in the overall dining etiquette.”

Japanese Cuisine is an art to master around few basic ingredients, however, more than the art of preparing, the taste of the cooked dish is largely determined by the quality of the ingredients. Although there are many Japanese Cuisine recently opened up in Lahore, Asian Aroma owes to the promise in delivering an authentic Japanese Cuisine under its highly sensitive policy of purchasing imported ingredients such as the Fish, Tuna, spices, Crab and many other unnoticed ingredients while ensuring the quality of the imported items under a dedicated quality assurance function. Abdullah added, “Japanese cuisine is relatively an expensive dining experience in Pakistan compared to other regions due to lack of readily available quality sea food items, However, Park Lane management has extensively carried forward their philosophy to provide a budgeted quality experience”.

Asian Aroma at the Park Lane offers extensive variety of Japanese delight in addition to the jumbo prawns in tempura as an idiosyncratic item to the wholesome menu. Abdullah's association for the Japanese Cuisine is beyond being a chef alone, He has equally contributed towards adding every bit of Japanese flavor to the overall ambiance. A gloomy polished wooden engulfed room contrasted in perfectly draped grey table runner alongside the sophisticated traditional Japanese cutlery coupled with a perfect blend of Japanese instrumental and Buddha Bar music to the place adds onto the overall dining excellence.

Abdullah firmly believes that Japanese Cuisine is perhaps a technical and complex cooking as the art is mastered around the management of the food temperature. “It is as much fun in cooking live on the Teppanyaki (the live cooking counter for Japanese Cuisine) before your guests and it is equally essential to maintain the food temperature while cooking and keeping the guests entertained over the counter”, expressed Abdullah while sharing the preferred skill set required in a Japanese Chef.

Although, all cuisines are embedded with their respective cultures, Japanese Cuisine cannot be served without the existence of Teppanyaki, the thrill of live cooking, the Japanese Ambiance and the aroma – The Asian Aroma!
